

The discipline of history embraces a diverse world of ideas, peoples, and events. Our faculty seeks to inform and to question, to provoke and to challenge our students to a higher level of understanding of the past. History at the University of South Florida offers the student an opportunity to explore civilizations from around the globe and from the ancient through contemporary eras. We encourage our students to move beyond traditional memorization of material to a critical level of thinking, analysis, and synthesis.

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are living in poverty has increased from 1.2 billion to 1.6 billion (World Bank 2000).

There are a number of reasons why the number of people living in poverty has increased. One of the main reasons is that the world's population has grown rapidly. In 1990, there were 5.3 billion people in the world, and by 2000, there were 6.1 billion. This means that there are now 800 million more people in the world than there were in 1990.

Another reason why the number of people living in poverty has increased is that the world's economy has not grown fast enough to keep up with the population growth. In 1990, the world's economy was worth $2.5 trillion, and by 2000, it was worth $3.5 trillion. This means that the world's economy has only grown by 40% in 10 years, while the world's population has grown by 15%.

There are also a number of other reasons why the number of people living in poverty has increased. For example, the world's climate is changing, and this is causing droughts and floods in many parts of the world. This is making it difficult for people to grow crops and raise animals, and it is also causing people to lose their homes and their livelihoods.

There are a number of things that we can do to help reduce the number of people living in poverty. One of the most important things is to help the world's economy to grow faster. This can be done by investing in infrastructure, such as roads and bridges, and by providing people with the skills and training they need to start businesses.

Another important thing we can do is to help people to grow crops and raise animals. This can be done by providing them with the seeds and tools they need, and by helping them to learn about the best ways to grow crops and raise animals. We can also help people to build their homes and to improve their living conditions.

There are a number of other things that we can do to help reduce the number of people living in poverty. For example, we can help people to get better access to education and healthcare. We can also help people to get better access to clean water and electricity.

It is important that we all work together to help reduce the number of people living in poverty. This is one of the most important challenges that we face in the world today, and it is one that we can all help to solve.
