

Tableau Project narrative...

Statement of the Problem

For the past 10 years, the government has been addressing the issue of youth crime. In 2005, the Ministry of Justice, in collaboration with the National Institute of Justice, launched the "National Strategy for the Prevention and Control of Juvenile Crime." This strategy aims to reduce the incidence of juvenile crime by addressing its root causes. One of the key components of the strategy is the promotion of community-based interventions. The government has allocated significant resources to support these interventions, including the establishment of youth centers and the training of community leaders.

The government has also implemented several laws and regulations to address youth crime. These include the "Juvenile Justice Act," which provides for the protection of juvenile offenders and the rehabilitation of young offenders through community-based programs.

3.8.4.1.1 Provide an analysis of the current population of the jail or prison.

Second, the prevalence of youth and social attitudes of individuals involved in

and enhance the quality of life for all citizens.

and enhance the quality of life for all citizens.

provided a inuse issues and bring appropriate interventions to the earliest possible juncture. The availability of public data to justify the defined from which is also more meaningful than for adults due to the nature of data collection. The partition of data across different sectors, including public school systems and the private sector.

3.9.1.1.1 Description of the project involves the collection, processing, storage, transmission, and use of personal data.

presented in this proposal, which will be used to implement the